U. S. GIANT SUPER-FORTRESS BOMBERS STRIKE FIRST BLOW AGAINST STOLEN MANCHURIA; HIT MUKDEN AREA

First Daylight Raid of Great Bombers Aimed at Japan's "Inner Zone" of Defense Industries on The Asiatic Mainland—Third Raid by Big B-20's Against The Enemy's Strategic Industries.

By Joseph A. Bors
(U. S. S. Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—An American aerial task force of giant superfortress bombers today struck the first blow against Japan's stolen empire in Manchuria by blasting industrial areas in the Mukden area.

No details were available about the assault beyond the fact that it was the first daylight raid by the great bombers and that it was aimed at Japan's "inner zone" of defense industries on the Asiatic mainland.

The War Department announced the daylight raid at 1.50 a. m., e. s. t., Saturday, which is equivalent to 12.50 p. m., Japanese time.

All previous B-29 attacks have been made public while the giant bombers were still over the enemy targets, and it was believed that news of the Mukden raid was released while the superfortresses were actually on their bomb-blasting mission.

It was the third raid by the great B-29 bombers against Japan's strategic industries on the enemy's mainland and in nearby Manchuria, which borders on Russian Siberia.

The two previous raids by superfortresses were aimed at Japanese industries on strategic Kyushu Island in the Japanese homeland.

The Mukden industrial region includes the cities of Anshan, Fushun and Panshiu. The communiqué said that in this area were concentrated Japanese heavy steel industries, synthetic oil refineries and ordnance plants.

The area struck by the big bombers was approximately 1,000 miles northwest of Tokyo, but apparently it was considered vital in the strategic bombing campaign launched by the 20th Air Force last June 15, when B-29's first hit the great Japanese steel center at Yawata.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner J. Alfred Rigby, of Cornwells Heights. Conran died in the Doylestown Hospital on June 5th, four days after he had been injured in an automobile accident when his car and a car driven by Stothoff collided at the intersection of the Danboro-Carversville and Gardenville-Point Pleasant highways.

Dewey Calls for The Defeat of "Ham" Fish

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, today called for the defeat of the veteran Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr. (R., N. Y.), whom the Governor accused of having injected a racial and religious issue into the Representative's campaign for re-nomination.

The Governor also repudiated Mr. Fish's announced support for the Republican National ticket, saying:

"I have never accepted the support of any such individual, and I never will."

Mr. Fish, with a record of 24 years' service in the House, is seeking renomination in the new 29th Congressional District, where he is opposed by Augustus W. Bennett. Mr. Bennett will oppose Mr. Fish in the election even if defeated for the Republican nomination, since, although a Republican, he is unopposed for the Democratic nomination at the primary next Tuesday. The district is strongly Republican.

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANEED BY SCRIBES

Mr. and Mrs. Ralston Fluck, of Quakertown, have received a message from the War Department informing them their son, Pfc. Alan Fluck, of the U. S. Marines, has been killed in action in the South Pacific.

He would have celebrated his 21st birthday next month. He had been in service almost two years, having trained at Parris Island, S. C.; Camp Elliott, Calif., and in Cuba.

He was graduated from Quakertown high school and until he enlisted was employed for a short time by Bethlehem Steel Company. His last visit home was in October.

The community committee, which is arranging for the erection of an honor roll at the Springfield high school, has placed an order for a board large enough to hold 300 names. It will be completed and erected within a few weeks.

Flames of undetermined origin on Wednesday destroyed a garage on the property of Otto A. Blavier on Guinea Lane, about three-quarters of a mile east of Warrington.

In addition to the garage, an automobile belonging to Mr. Blavier, who is employed in the Navy Yard in Philadelphia, was destroyed. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Blavier, and her husband is of the opinion the fire was caused by a short circuit in the automobile because a short time before the fire was discovered he heard the horn in the automobile sounding.

Members of the Warrington Township Fire Company responded to the call, and saved a chicken house which stands near the garage.

Ralph Edward Fillmore, M.M. 3/c, of the Coast Artillery, is the ninth Sellersville man to die while in the service of his country during World War II. He was 39 years old.

His wife, formerly Emma Cressman, now Private Emma C. Fillmore, of the Women's Army Corps at Fort Eustis, Va., was notified her husband was killed by a falling barge in Milne Bay in South Pacific on July 3, and that he was

HUMAN VS. PROPERTY RIGHTS

(Doylestown Intelligencer, July 28)

Probably few things would more astonish a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1787 than to read in a New Deal speech something to the effect that we are going through a great struggle of "human rights versus property rights."

He would be astonished because to the makers of the Constitution, the right to hold something distinct from and contradictory to other human rights important and fundamental of these "human" rights. That is not just a matter of conjecture. The creators of the Constitution didn't merely feel that way—they said it. Of the many quotations which could be used, perhaps the words of a Pennsylvanian, Gouverneur Morris, best describe the point of view:

"Life and liberty were generally said to be of more value than property. An accurate view of the matter would, nevertheless, prove that property was the main object of society."

Actually, mankind thought it had made a great forward step when man in general, and not just ruling classes became able to own property. Insecure title to even the most intimate belongings always was the hallmark of slavery; treemen were those who could be owners.

The Constitution was written for a social order and an economy in which the private individual would want to and would have the right to own and use whatever he was able to buy—of course within the obvious limits that his use be not hurtful to his fellow citizens.

Those who deny the existence of the right, or who would destroy it in favor of some type of community ownership, ought to be courteously discouraged from studying the American constitution. They will not approve of it; the more they read, the less they will like it. The Constitution contemplates only two types of ownership, private ownership by individuals, and public ownership by government. Of the theory of community ownership, which is the nebulous background for both Communism and State Socialism, it has no part.

Community ownership as a concept meaning ownership by part or all of society as distinguished from private or state ownership is by no means new. It formed a portion of the feudal system. That it existed in Colonial America may be well proven by the public parks still called Commons, in Boston and elsewhere, which were originally community pastures.

But the Constitution has none of this. It accepts the right of individual ownership as fundamental, and surrounds and guards that right as no other national government has ever done.

From the point of view of the economic theorist or social experimenter, this may be bad. From the point of view of American citizens who for a century and a half

FAMILY REUNIONS ARE FEW IN NUMBER

Gasoline Rationing Has Restricted The Family Get-Togethers

BARBERS MEET ON 5TH

The trend of the times is noted in the family reunions—or rather the lack of them this season.

Usually by late July they are in full swing, with family gatherings scheduled by the score throughout Bucks County which boasts many old, established clans at whose sessions three and four generations gather.

Gasoline rationing makes it difficult for the yearly trek to "grandfather's farm" or to "Aunt Nellie's," and thus the number of attendants was gradually lowered during the past two years. Probably interest did not wane, but the fact that it was almost impossible to get a fair representation together made the effort appear futile.

So many families decided to dispense with the said reunions until after the war.

News from various sections of the county is noted for its lack of reunions at this season of the year. They are few and far between.

One of the few listed is the Barber family reunion to be held at Sullivan's Grove, Washington Crossing, N. J., on Saturday, August 5th. Baseball, softball, quoits, etc., are planned; and letters will

Relatives to Operate 3 Stores in Hulmeville

HULMEVILLE, July 29.—Effective on Monday, July 31st, the three main merchandise interests one family as it were.

Samuel J. Illick, who for the past 50 years has been engaged in the grocery business, relinquishes his work today, he having sold his business to Howard Foerst, of Main street.

Another grocery store, at Main and Hulme streets, is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Ettenger; while the third store, dealing in ice cream, confectionery, etc., and located at Main street and Trenton avenue, is operated by the Foerst's son and Ettenger's daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Foerst.

Mr. Illick, who has catered to many hundreds of families during his business career, launched in business as a grocery clerk in this borough, but for the greater part of the half century has operated his own store.

JAMISON SOLDIER CAPTURES 7 NAZIS

Staff Sgt. Jack Clinton, Well Known Football Official, Has Thrilling Experience

JUST JERKED THUMB

JAMISON, July 29.—Staff Sergeant Jack Clinton, son of John T. Clinton, well known college football official for many years and former Yale star athlete, walked into a nest of seven Nazis with an infantry Division in France, and although he was armed with but one rifle, made them give up by merely jerking his thumb.

Staff Clinton, who lives with his parents at "Five Boys Farm," here, is a brother of Pfc. Douglas Clinton, who was killed in action last January 9, in Italy.

Staff Clinton, according to word received by his parents, was returning to his company post after turning in another prisoner when he came upon the Germans on a unken road.

"I stepped down on the road and there they were all about me," Staff Clinton said. "They were all in oxholes, but had their heads up and I could see them on three sides."

Clinton said that he jerked his rifle into firing position and then "gave them the thumb." "They knew what I meant when I jerked my thumb up in the air and every one crawled out and gave up."

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

American Armored Forces Slash Through in Normandy

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force—Armored forces of the American First Army slashed their way through German positions below Coutances today to reach the west coast and cut off Nazi troops trapped below the neck of the Cherbourg Peninsula.

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that the armored spearheads had reached the sea south of the estuary of the Sienne River. Coutances itself was cleared of German troops by tank assault forces which converged on the communications hub from Perriers and Marigny.

One American spearhead southwest of Coutances swept on beyond captured Notre-de-Cenilly and St. Denis-Le-Gast in a drive to cut off more of the German forces who were able to slip away to the south of Coutances while rear guard forces delayed the American assault units.

Latest reports said that the southernmost spearhead had cut its way almost to the sea in the drive to throw a second arc of encirclement around the Nazis along the west coast.

After capturing St. Denis-Le-Gast, four miles southwest of Notre-Dame-De-Cenilly, the advanced elements reached Brehai, on the Amlin coastal road only a few miles from the sea above Granville.

The most advanced elements were officially reported five to six miles south of Coutances.

Southwest of Coutances the American armored thrust crossed the Suelles and Sienne rivers, enabling the Yanks to reach the sea and cut off the Germans remaining north of Coutances. There was no evidence, however, that large numbers of Germans were trapped, the Nazis having pulled back through their forces in rapid retreat after the initial American breakthrough southwest of St. Lo.

East of St. Lo the Americans captured St. Jean-Des-Baisants.

Doe, Killed Here by Car, Is Given to Hospital

Patients at Harriman Hospital are enjoying venison steaks.

A doe, struck at Green Lane and the canal by an automobile on Tuesday morning, was turned over to the hospital by a game warden.

The motorist, a member of the armed forces, was much surprised when the deer suddenly loomed in front of his car as he traversed the thoroughfare. He notified state police, and a game warden was called.

One fender of the car was damaged.

Four-Barn Blaze Does Damage at Dublin

DUBLIN, July 29.—A four-barn fire that for a time threatened the central section of this community, Wednesday afternoon, was brought under control through the excellent co-operation of five volunteer fire companies that answered the alarms, resulting in an estimated loss of only $3,500.

"It was the finest demonstration of co-operation on the part of fire companies that I have ever seen in this county," declared Chief Lloyd Crouthamel, of the Dublin Fire Company.

The four barns, adjoining each other, face on Mill street, opposite the Willard Hosiery Company. Two other barns in the same row were saved from damage.

The fire was discovered by Charles Gill, who was working on the roof of a property near the barn owned by Arthur M. Myers, a story and a half structure, which housed an automobile, lawn mower and garden tools, all of which were burned. The Myers barn was burned to the ground.

Adjoining the Myers barn is a barn owned by Jacob Kooker, which was filled with baled straw. The west side of this structure was burned, but firemen controlled the flames so effectively that the contents were unharmed by the fire.

A barn owned by T. O. Kulp, adjoining the Kooker barn, and located in the rear of the old Yoder store property, was damaged by fire. Part of the roof was burned and the windows and doors were burned out.

The flames spread to a barn owned by Mrs. Frank Lyons (the old Flagler butcher property), where a few holes were burned in the roof. The Lyons barn is only 50 feet away from the plant of the Willard Hosiery Company.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE LIBERATOR STATION, England

July 29.—The officers and men of the armament and ordnance sections of this Group, commanded by Colonel Arthur J. Pierce, of Monague, Mass., claim to have established a record when they recently loaded their B-24 Liberators in one hour and 15 minutes for an attack on the invasion area in France.

Ordinarily four to five hours is considered fast time for bomb-loading, and six to eight hours is the average.

On the memorable day when bomb-loading and readying of machine guns was completed in slightly more than one hour, it was the third mission for Col. Pierce's group in less than 12 hours; and one of these missions had been against Berlin.

Ordnance and Armament personnel are accustomed to little or no sleep on many days as a matter of course, but on this day among those who could hardly recall when he last slept was First Lieutenant Samuel G. Navette, armament officer, of 1808 Wilson avenue, Bristol, Penna.

For him and his fellow-workers it is commonplace to perform the delicate, technical and dangerous task of loading the huge Liberators in the darkness of the British blackout as well as in daylight.

This Group recently received official commendation from Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, Commanding Eighth Air Force, for combat achievement on their first mission which was against Berlin. It was the longest initial assault ever flown by any unit in the European Theater and the heaviest daylight bombardment of the German capital on record up to that time.

NEW STYLES FOR MEN

A new era in men's wearing apparel will be ushered in at war's end, but changes will not be as radical as some clothing industry spokesmen have predicted.
This was the gist of observations at the semi-annual meeting of the International Association of Clothing Designers in New York.

Clothing worn by men in the service during the war, it is pointed out, undoubtedly will have influence on men's styles. Clothing trade executives now are in the throes of determining the extent of changes that will occur in the immediate postwar era.

While it is admitted by many observers that the "shirt-suit" has important potentialities, the consensus of clothing industry executives is that it will not prove the final answer to the comfort-in-clothes demands that apparently are slated to become increasingly important.

The "shirt-suit" is pictured by its exponents as a continuation of the summer attire pattern of the Army way of life. They declare that millions of officers and enlisted men never will return to the confines of a regulation sack suit during hot weather.

Others are certain that the disheveled appearance of the shirt-and-slacks combination will prove a hindrance to its universal adoption in civilian life. One stylist is convinced that men will want something between the sack suit and the so-called shirt-suit. "Men will not resign themselves to looking as if they had just tumbled out of bed," he said.

LITTLE TO CHOOSE

It is evident from what is taking place in Germany that many German army officers have been convinced that the war is lost. It is evident that many of them want to get rid of Hitler and sue for peace on the basis that the bad man has gone and the rest of the Germans are all right and

It is probable that most of the officers desirous of getting out of the war—now that it is lost—are members of the Junker caste of traditional militarists who like to push their luck as far as it will go while they're winning but care very little about standing up and taking it when the winning shoe is on the other fellow's foot. And it is suspected that the rapid Russian drive toward East Prussia, the Junkers' big estate paradise, had much to do with their desire to toss in the sponge and save what they could.

Disunity within the Reich is a fine thing for the Allies. It will shorten the war immeasurably.
But as between Hitler and the Junker military caste there's little to choose as far as peace terms are concerned. Hitler may have led Germany into war, but the German militarists had built up his war machine and were only too willing to go along as long as the pickings looked good.

Hitler has a choice between continuing the fight and unconditional surrender. He loses either way. The militarists, whether they accept the Nazi doctrines or not, are deserving of no better choice.

Failing to hold a 2-0 lead, the Rohm and Haas team bowed to Fleetwings last evening in a Trenton Industrial League tilt on the Maple Beach diamond. The "Wings" scored four in the sixth and two in the seventh to win the tilt, 6-2. For five innings, Ray Uhm had the Fleetwings team eating out of the palm of his hand and during this stretch he allowed five hits, including a triple from the bat of Elliott. But still the Rohm & Haas hurler kept issuing goose-eggs.

But in the sixth the team started to go to pieces. Calderone hit safely and went to second on an error. Ascendis tripled and Calderone crossed. Elliott bunted and Uhm threw to the plate too late to get Ascendis. An argument ensued near the plate and after it was over both Jack Mitchell and Barney Ludwig were tossed from the game. Elliott scored on Leone's hit, a double.

Cy Bachman pitched for Fleetwings and allowed the chemical exubers but six scattered bingles. He was nicked for a run in the third on a hit by Tosti, a stolen base, and Elmer's bingle. Another crossed the following frame when Doughy singled, moved up on a passed ball, and counted on Mitchell's safety.

Elvert, Lodge and Calderone led the Fleetwings with the stick, getting two out of three while Mitchell had two out of two for the losing aggregation.

enced workers should be permitted to handle intricate machinery.

Horst urged farmers to follow the suggestion of Harrison S. Nolt, of Columbia, president of the Pennsylvania Rural Home and Farm Safety Committee, to take time during the week to list every hazard that might lead to accidents and to make repairs immediately.

Hundreds of thousands of work hours have been lost annually this year as the result of farm accidents, he added.

The Department also warned farmers and victory gardeners that first generation corn borers have entered the pupal stage and suggested control dusting or spraying be started by the end of this week.

The use of rotenone as a dust or spray, or a four per cent nicotine dust every five days during the second generation of egg hatching until August 16 was recommended by the Bureau of Plant Industry.

"Many growers of sweet corn report complete loss of their early planting," the Bureau reported, and damage so far this year is much more extensive than for the same period last year.

Department entomologists predicted second brood corn borers will be more destructive during August and September.

While few borer worms have been observed in the heavily-infested southwestern areas of the State, the Department reported that single generation borers have been observed in advanced stages in northwestern and west-central Pennsylvania.

Because of an over-supply of snap beans, housewives have been urged by Horst to buy them now for canning.

"Prices are low and wastage of large quantities of important war time foods can be avoided," Horst declared.

Effects of the drought in most sections of the State were apparent on virtually all crops, the Department asserted. The Federal State Crop Reporting Service added that corn was withering in many fields while soybeans were short and truck crops suffering from a lack of moisture.

"Peach and grape prospects continue promising and a good crop of early apples is being harvested," the Department said, "with winter varieties generally light. Beet supplies are heavy while beans and cabbage are excessive in many markets but some have been plowed under due to the over-supply and low prices."

Pvt. Aloysius Leyden, of 336 Jackson street, is hospitalized in England.

Whether he was wounded in action or suffered an injury to his arm in an accidental manner is not known by his wife, Mrs. Sara Leyden.

Mrs. Leyden received a letter from her husband, which had been dictated to a friend by Pvt. Leyden. In the letter the Bristolian stated that he has a "bad arm," but that he is getting along "fine."

Mrs. Leyden stated that her husband had been in France, and although he did not mention at any time that he was in action, she knew that men who went overseas with him and who were in the same contingent in France were seeing action. She is of the belief he failed to mention being in action for fear of causing her worry.

The Germans now are battling on the last hill time before Florence. Despite violent counter-attacks by the Germans, New Zealand troops spearheaded the attack held their gains and established good positions six miles from Florence.

Further west other troops of the Eighth Army pushed toward the Arno River on a wide front and got to within two miles of Empoli, 15 miles west of Florence.

Polish troops of the Eighth Army in the Adriatic sector entered the town of Senigallia, and extended their bridgehead over the Misa River. Before Pisa, American troops of the Fifth Army engaged the Germans in heavy artillery duels. Patrols were active on several sectors.

2,000 Japs Killed at Guam

Aboard Admiral Conolly's Flagship Off Guam—Via Navy Radio—Two thousand Japanese dead today litter the infiltration route of a large enemy force which broke through the American lines on the northern beachhead and met with disaster before dawn in the greatest and most decisive battle of the Guam campaign to date.

Moving down two valleys from the mountain range where they had been massing, the Japs attempted their favorite operation under cover of darkness with a force of several thousand men. A few succeeded in infiltrating through our lines and at one point penetrated within a hundred yards of the beach.

After severe fighting the Americans repelled the attack and drove the Japs back.

Meantime, the battle for Orate Peninsula continues with unhampered fury but is entering its final stage despite strong enemy resistance. The Marines have advanced to within 2,000 yards of the tip of the promontory beyond which is the sea and the U. S. Fleet.

Heavy Bombers Blast Leuna Synthetic Oil Plant

London—For the second successive day, giant formations of American heavy bombers blasted the sprawling Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg in central Germany today, striking on the heels of a pre-dawn RAF assault against Stuttgart, Hamburg and Frankfurt-On-Main.

More than 1,100 Fortresses and Liberators, supported by an estimated 750 thunderbolts, Mustang and Lightning fighters, carried out the daylight raid, detaching a portion of their number to pound out the bay—also at unidentified targets in the vicinity of the Bremen Naval Base. The Leuna refinery was hit by more than 1,000 heavy bombers yesterday during a three-pronged raid on the Leipzig area which raked Merseburg, Halle and Dessau.

The weather today was "mixed," with some formations bombing visually and others releasing their explosives and incendiaries by means of instruments.

The British employed more than 1,000 heavyweight raiders in their pre-dawn attacks, boosting to at least 2,100 the total number of giant bombers over the Reich in the early hours of today, and to a minimum of 3,100 the number pounding Germany proper in the last 24 hours.

The RAF gave Stuttgart its fourth pounding in five days, in addition to spreading desolation through Hamburg and Frankfurt on the main. Liberator formations in daylight also attacked the German air-drome at Juvin-court and Laon-Couvron, northeast of Paris.

German night fighters came up to challenge the British over the Reich as numerous aerial duels were fought, with at least 21 Nazi planes being shot down and many more probably being destroyed or damaged. The heavy night action cost the bomber command 62 craft.

KNOW YOUR STATE

From the beginning of its history, Pennsylvania has contributed more largely to the upbuilding of the American native stock than any other state in our Union. In the early days when Pittsburgh was the gateway to the West, it was from Pennsylvania that the larger portion of those early immigrants came to settle the northern banks of the Ohio River which was then our country's western frontier.

In the second great movement to the West, which occurred in the decade preceding the Civil War and the twenty years after, Pennsylvania again supplied a large share of the stalwart and enterprising population of the Rocky Mountain area and the Pacific Coast.

Data lately released by the United States Census on interstate movements since 1910 show that during the past 30 years Pennsylvania has continued to supply a larger share of population to the less-developed states of the West than any other part of our Union.

Despite this generous contribution of its native stock to other states, Pennsylvania is among the leaders in our Nation in the proportion of its people who prefer their own native soil to any other. Of all the native Americans living in Pennsylvania in 1940, 89% were born in the Commonwealth. This compares with 85% for Massachusetts, 82% for all of New England, 83% for New York, 69% for New Jersey and 83% for Virginia. The high birth rate in Pennsylvania in the past 30 years, and indeed through all its history, has thus made it possible for the Commonwealth to be the leader in supplying native-born population to the rest of the Union and also to rank so high in the number of Pennsylvanians now living on their own native soil.

vate ownership in the country, whether it is a house, a farm, an automobile, stocks and bonds, insurance, or a business enterprise.

It is small wonder that the vocal New Order radicals who have been active in our political life made up their minds long ago their first and chief enemy was the Constitution.

U. S. GIANT SUPER-FORTRESS BOMBERS STRIKE FIRST BLOW AGAINST STOLEN MANCHURIA; HIT MUKDEN AREA

First Daylight Raid of Great Bombers Aimed at Japan's "Inner Zone" of Defense Industries on The Asiatic Mainland—Third Raid by Big B-20's Against The Enemy's Strategic Industries.

By Joseph A. Bors
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 29—An American aerial task force of giant superfortress bombers today struck the first blow against Japan's stolen empire in Manchuria by blasting industrial areas in the Mukden area.

No details were available about the assault beyond the fact that it was the first daylight raid by the great bombers and that it was aimed at Japan's "inner zone" of defense industries on the Asiatic mainland.

The War Department announced the daylight raid at 1:50 a. m., e. v. t., Saturday, which is equivalent to 12:50 p. m. Japanese time.

All previous B-29 attacks have been made public while the giant bombers were still over the enemy targets, and it was believed that the attack of the Mukden raid was released while the superfortresses were actually on their bomb-blasting mission.

It was the third raid by the great B-29 bombers against Japan's strategic industries on the enemy's mainland and in nearby Manchuria, which borders on Russian Siberia.

The two previous raids by superfortresses were aimed at Japanese industries on strategic Kyushu Island in the Japanese homeland.

The Mukden industrial region includes the cities of Anshan, Fushun and Penhsu. The communiqué said that in this area were concentrated Japanese heavy steel industries, synthetic oil refineries and ordnance plants.

The area struck by the big bombers was approximately 1,000 miles northwest of Tokyo, but apparently it was considered vital in the strategic bombing campaign launched by the 20th Air Force last June 15, when B-29's first hit the great Japanese steel center at Yawata.

Cocoran died in the Doylestown Hospital on June 5th, four days after he had been injured in an automobile accident when his car and a car driven by Stothoff collided at the intersection of the Danboro-Carversville and Gardenville-Point Pleasant highways.

Dewey Calls for The Defeat of "Ham" Fish

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29—Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, today called for the defeat of the veteran Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr. (R., N. Y.), whom the Governor accused of having injected a racial and religious issue into the Representative's campaign for re-nomination.

The Governor also repudiated Mr. Fish's announced support for the Republican National ticket, saying:

"I have never accepted the support of any such individual, and I never will."

Mr. Fish, with a record of 24 years' service in the House, is seeking renomination in the new 29th Congressional District, where he is opposed by Augustus W. Bennett. Mr. Bennett will oppose Mr. Fish in the election even if defeated for the Republican nomination, since, although a Republican, he is unopposed for the Democratic nomination at the primary next Tuesday. The district is strongly Republican.

GLEANEED BY SCRIBES

Mr. and Mrs. Ralston Fluck, of Quakertown, have received a message from the War Department informing them their son, Pfc. Alan Fluck, of the U. S. Marines, has been killed in action in the South Pacific.

He would have celebrated his 21st birthday next month. He had been in service almost two years, having trained at Parris Island, S. C.; Camp Elliott, Calif., and in Cuba.

He was graduated from Quakertown high school and until he enlisted was employed for a short time by Bethlehem Steel Company. His last visit home was in October.

The community committee, which is arranging for the erection of an honor roll at the Springfield high school, has placed an order for a large, large enough to hold 300 names. It will be completed and erected within a few weeks.

Flames of undetermined origin on Wednesday destroyed a garage on the property of Otto A. Blavier on Guinea Lane, about three-quarters of a mile east of Warrington.

In addition to the garage, an automobile belonging to Mr. Blavier, who is employed in the Navy Yard in Philadelphia, was destroyed. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Blavier, and her husband is of the opinion the fire was caused by a short circuit in the automobile because a short time before the fire was discovered he heard the horn in the automobile sounding.

Members of the Warrington Township Fire Company responded to the call, and saved a chicken house which stands near the garage.

Ralph Edward Fillmore, M.M.M. 3/c, of the Coast Artillery, is the ninth Sellersville man to die while in the service of his country during World War II. He was 39 years old.

His wife, formerly Emma Crossman, now Private Emma C. Fillmore, of the Women's Army Corps at Fort Eustis, Va., was notified her husband was killed by a falling barge in Milne Bay in South Pacific on July 3, and that he was

(Doylestown Intelligencer, July 28)

Probably few things would more astonish a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1787 than to read in a New Deal speech something to the effect that we are going through a great struggle of "human rights versus property rights."

He would be astonished because to the makers of the Constitution, the right to hold something distinct from and contradictory to other human rights important and fundamental of these "human" rights. That is not just a matter of conjecture. The creators of the Constitution didn't merely feel that way—they said it. Of the many quotations which could be used, perhaps the words of a Pennsylvanian, Gouverneur Morris, best describe the point of view:

"Life and liberty were generally said to be of more value than property. An accurate view of the matter would, nevertheless, prove that property was the main object of society."

Actually, mankind thought it had made a great forward step when man in general, and not just ruling classes became able to own property. Insecure title to even the most intimate belongings always was the hallmark of slavery; freemen were those who could be owners.

The Constitution was written for a social order and an economy in which the private individual would want to and would have the right to own and use whatever he was able to buy—of course within the obvious limits that his use be not hurtful to his fellow citizens.

Those who deny the existence of the right, or who would destroy it in favor of some type of community ownership, ought to be courteously discouraged from studying the American constitution. They will not approve of it; the more they read, the less they will like it. The Constitution contemplates only two types of ownership, private ownership by individuals, and public ownership by government. Of the theory of community ownership, which is the nebulous background for both Communism and State Socialism, it has no part.

Community ownership as a concept meaning ownership by part or all of society as distinguished from private or state ownership is by no means new. It formed a portion of the feudal system. That it existed in Colonial America may be well proven by the public parks still called Commons, in Boston and elsewhere, which were originally community pastures.

But the Constitution has none of this. It accepts the right of individual ownership as fundamental, and surrounds and guards that right as no other national government has ever done.

From the point of view of the economic theorist or social experimenter, this may be bad. From the point of view of American citizens who for a century and a half

FAMILY REUNIONS ARE FEW IN NUMBER

Gasoline Rationing Has Restricted The Family Get-Togethers

BARBERS MEET ON 5TH

The trend of the times is noted in the family reunions—or rather the lack of them this season.

Usually by late July they are in full swing, with family gatherings scheduled by the score throughout Bucks County which boasts many old, established clans at whose sessions three and four generations gather.

Gasoline rationing makes it difficult for the yearly trek to "grandfather's farm" or to "Aunt Nellie's" and thus the number of attendants was gradually lowered during the past two years. Probably interest did not wane, but the fact that it was almost impossible to get a fair representation together made the effort appear futile.

So many families decided to dispense with the said reunions until after the war.

News from various sections of the county is noted for its lack of reunions at this season of the year. They are few and far between.

One of the few listed is the Barber family reunion to be held at Sullivan's Grove, Washington Crossing, N. J., on Saturday, August 5th. Baseball, softball, quilts, etc., are planned; and letters will

Staff Sgt. Jack Clinton, Well Known Football Official, Has Thrilling Experience

JUST JERKED THUMB

JAMISON, July 29—Staff Sergeant Jack Clinton, son of John T. Clinton, well known college football official for many years and former Yale star athlete, walked into a nest of seven Nazis with an infantry Division in France, and although he was armed with but one rifle, made them give up by merely jerking his thumb.

Sgt. Clinton, who lives with his parents at "Five Boys Farm," here, is a brother of Pvt. Douglas Clinton, who was killed in action last January 9, in Italy.

Sgt. Clinton, according to word received by his parents, was returning to his company post after turning in another prisoner when he came upon the Germans on a "united road."

"I stepped down on the road and there they were all about me," Sgt. Clinton said. "They were all in 'oxholes,' but had their heads up and I could see them on three sides."

Clinton said that he jerked his rifle into firing position and then "gave them the thumb." "They knew what I meant when I jerked my thumb up in the air and every one crawled out and gave up."

Asked if he was frightened when he found himself surrounded by the Germans, the soldier replied: "I've seen scared so much, I just don't get that way any more."

Patients at Harriman Hospital are enjoying venison steaks.

A doe, struck at Green Lane and the canal by an automobile on Tuesday morning, was turned over to this hospital by a game warden.

Four-Barn Blaze Does Damage at Dublin

DUBLIN, July 29—A four-barn fire that for a time threatened the central section of this community, Wednesday afternoon, was brought under control through the excellent co-operation of five volunteer fire companies that answered the alarms, resulting in an estimated loss of only $3,500.

"It was the finest demonstration of co-operation on the part of fire companies that I have ever seen in this county," declared Chief Lloyd Crouthamel, of the Dublin Fire Company.

The four barns, adjoining each other, face on Mill street, opposite the Willard Hosiery Company. Two other barns in the same row were saved from damage.

The fire was discovered by Charles Gill, who was working on the roof of a property near the barn owned by Arthur M. Myers, a story and a half structure, which housed an automobile, lawn mower and garden tools, all of which were burned. The Myers barn was burned to the ground.

Adjoining the Myers barn is a barn owned by Jacob Kooker, which was filled with baled straw. The west side of this structure was burned, but firemen controlled the flames so effectively that the contents were unharmed by the fire.

A barn owned by T. O. Kulp, adjoining the Kooker barn, and located in the rear of the old Yoder store property, was damaged by fire. Part of the roof was burned and the windows and doors were burned out.

The flames spread to a barn owned by Mrs. Frank Lyons (the old Flagler butcher property), where a few holes were burned in the roof. The Lyons barn is only 50 feet away from the plant of the Willard Hosiery Company.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE LIBERATOR STATION, England, July 29—The officers and men of the armament and ordnance sections of this Group, commanded by Colonel Arthur J. Pierce, of Montague, Mass., claim to have established a record when they recently loaded their B-24 Liberators in one hour and 15 minutes for an attack on the invasion area in France.

Ordinarily four to five hours is considered fast time for bomb-loading, and six to eight hours is the average.

On the memorable day when bomb-loading and readying of machine guns was completed in slightly more than one hour, it was the third mission for Col. Pierce's group in less than 12 hours; and one of these missions had been against Berlin.

Ordnance and Armament personnel are accustomed to little or no sleep on many days as a matter of course, but on this day among those who could hardly recall when he last slept was First Lieutenant Samuel G. Navetta, armament officer, of 1305 Wilson avenue, Bristol, Penna.

For him and his fellow-workers it is commonplace to perform the delicate, technical and dangerous task of loading the huge Liberators in the darkness of the British blackout as well as in daylight.

This Group recently received official commendation from Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, Commanding Eighth Air Force, for combat achievement on their first mission which was against Berlin. It was the longest initial assault ever flown by any unit in the European Theater and the heaviest daylight bombardment of the German capital on record up to that time.

American Armored Forces Slash Through in Normandy

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force—Armored forces of the American First Army slashed their way through German positions below Coutances today to reach the west coast and cut off Nazi troops trapped below the neck of the Cherbourg Peninsula.

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that the armored spearheads had reached the sea south of the estuary of the Sienne River. Coutances itself was cleared of German troops by tank assault forces which converged on the communications hub from Perriers and Marigny.

One American spearhead southwest of Coutances swept on beyond captured Notre-de-Centilly and St. Denis-Le-Gast in a drive to cut off more of the German forces who were able to slip away to the south of Coutances while rear guard forces delayed the American assault units.

Latest reports said that the southernmost spearhead had cut its way almost to the sea in the drive to throw a second area of encirclement around the Nazis along the west coast.

After capturing St. Denis-Le-Gast, four miles southwest of Notre-Dame-De-Centilly, the advanced elements reached Brehal, on the Amn coastal road only a few miles from the sea above Granville.

The most advanced elements were officially reported five to six miles south of Coutances.

Southwest of Coutances the American armored thrust crossed the Suelles and Sienne rivers, enabling the Yanks to reach the sea and cut off the Germans remaining north of Coutances. There was no evidence, however, that large numbers of Germans were trapped, the Nazis having pulled back through their forces in rapid retreat after the initial American breakthrough southwest of St. Lo.

East of St. Lo the Americans captured St. Jean-Des-Baisants.

NEW STYLES FOR MEN

A new era in men's wearing apparel will be ushered in at war's end, but changes will not be as radical as some clothing industry spokesmen have predicted. This was the gist of observations at the semi-annual meeting of the International Association of Clothing Designers in New York.

Clothing worn by men in the service during the war, it is pointed out, undoubtedly will have influence on men's styles. Clothing trade executives now are in the throes of determining the extent of changes that will occur in the immediate postwar era.

While it is admitted by many observers that the "shirt-suit" has important potentialities, the consensus of clothing industry executives is that it will not prove the final answer to the comfort-in-clothes demands that apparently are slated to become increasingly important.

The "shirt-suit" is pictured by its exponents as a continuation of the summer attire pattern of the Army way of life. They declare that millions of officers and enlisted men never will return to the confines of a regulation sack suit during hot weather.

Others are certain that the disheveled appearance of the shirt-and-slacks combination will prove a hindrance to its universal adoption in civilian life. One stylist is convinced that men will want something between the sack suit and the so-called shirt-suit. "Men will not resign themselves to looking as if they had just tumbled out of bed," he said.

LITTLE TO CHOOSE

It is evident from what is taking place in Germany that many German army officers have been convinced that the war is lost. It is evident that many of them want to get rid of Hitler and sue for peace on the basis that the bad man has gone and the rest of the Germans are all right and entitled to a break.

It is probable that most of the officers desirous of getting out of the war—now that it is lost—are members of the Junker caste of traditional militarists who like to push their luck as far as it will go while they're winning but care very little about standing up and taking it when the winning shoe is on the other fellow's foot. And it is suspected that the rapid Russian drive toward East Prussia, the Junkers' big estate paradise, had much to do with their desire to toss in the sponge and save what they could.

Disunity within the Reich is a fine thing for the Allies. It will shorten the war immeasurably. But as between Hitler and the Junker military caste there's little to choose as far as peace terms are concerned. Hitler may have led Germany into war, but the German militarists had built up his war machine and were only too willing to go along as long as the pickings looked good.

Hitler has a choice between continuing the fight and unconditional surrender. He loses either way. The militarists, whether they accept the Nazi doctrines or not, are deserving of no better choice.

WITH TONS OF WASTE PAPER!

Every item that goes into the biggest invasion in history will require paper in some form!

For paper is a vital war material—used in plane parts, flares, supply parachutes, bomb bands, food and blood plasma containers... Paper makes or wraps over 700,000 war items!

Think of the boys in uniform whose lives may depend on your waste paper. Bundle every scrap. Make sure it's turned in. Do it now—to help shorten the war, to bring more boys home safe and soon!

Almighty God, let there be in our hearts a light brighter than noonday. We would that the Son of man might live within us His life of light, and cause all our life to burn with His glory, so that men passing by may take knowledge of us that we have lived with Jesus, and that we no longer live ourselves but that Christ liveth in us. For this miracle we pray. We would be born again. We would see with new eyes and hear with new hearing, and answer all the appeals of Thy providence with new voices. In Jesus' Name. Amen.

Failing to hold a 2-0 lead, the Rohm and Haas team bowed to Fleetwings last evening in a Trenton Industrial League tilt on the Maple Beach diamond. The "Wings" scored four in the sixth and two in the seventh to win the tilt, 6-2.

For five innings, Ray Ulm had the Fleetwings team eating out of the palm of his hand and during this stretch he allowed five hits, including a triple from the bat of Elliott. But still the Rohm & Haas hurler kept issuing goose-eggs.

But in the sixth the team started to go to pieces. Calderone hit safely and went to second on an error. Ascendis tripled and Calderone crossed. Elliott hunted and Ulm threw to the plate too late to get Ascendis. An argument ensued near the plate and after it was over both Jack Mitchell and Barney Ludwig were tossed from the game. Elliott scored on Leone's hit, a double.

Cy Bachman pitched for Fleetwings and allowed the chemical mixers but six scattered bingles. He was nicked for a run in the third on a hit by Tosti, a stolen base, and Elmer's bingle. Another crossed the following frame when Doughy singled, moved up on a passed ball, and counted on Mitchell's safety.

Farmers Cautioned About Many Hazards

enced workers should be permitted to handle intricate machinery.

Horst urged farmers to follow the suggestion of Harrison S. Nolt, of Columbia, president of the Pennsylvania Rural Home and Farm Safety Committee, to take time during the week to list every hazard that might lead to accidents and to make repairs immediately.

Hundreds of thousands of work hours have been lost annually this year as the result of farm accidents, he added.

The Department also warned farmers and victory gardeners that first generation corn borers have entered the pupal stage and suggested control dusting or spraying be started by the end of this week.

The use of rotenone as a dust or spray, or a four per cent nicotine dust every five days during the second generation of egg hatching until August 16 was recommended by the Bureau of Plant Industry.

Many growers of sweet corn report complete loss of their early planting. The Bureau reported, and damage so far this year is much more extensive than for the same period last year.

Department entomologists predicted second brood corn borers will be more destructive during August and September.

While few borer worms have been observed in the heavily-infested southwestern areas of the State, the Department reported that single generation borers have been observed in advanced stages to northwestern and west-central Pennsylvania.

Because of an over-supply of snap beans, housewives have been urged by Horst to buy them now for canning.

"Prices are low and wastage of large quantities of important war time foods can be avoided," Horst declared.

2,000 Japs Killed at Guam

Aboard Admiral Coady's Flagship Off Guam Via Navy Radio—Two thousand Japanese dead today after the infiltration route of a large enemy force which broke through the American lines on the northern beachhead and met with disaster before dawn in the greatest and most decisive battle of the Guam campaign to date.

Moving down two valleys from the mountain range where they had been massing, the Japs attempted their favorite operation under cover of darkness with a force of several thousand men. A few succeeded in infiltrating through our lines and at one point penetrated within a hundred yards of the beach.

After severe fighting the Americans repelled the attack and drove the Japs back.

Meanwhile, the battle for Orate Peninsula continues with unhampered fury but is entering its final stage despite strong enemy resistance. The Marines have advanced to within 3,000 yards of the tip of the promontory beyond which is the sea and the U. S. Fleet.

Heavy Bombers Blast Leuna Synthetic Oil Plant

London—For the second successive day giant formations of American heavy bombers blasted the sprawling Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg in central Germany today, striking on the heels of a pre-dawn RAF assault against Stuttgart, Hamburg and Frankfurt-On-Main.

More than 1,100 Fortresses and Liberators, supported by an estimated 750 thunderbolts, Mustang and Lightning fighters, carried out the daylight raid, detaching a portion of their number to pound out the bay—also at unidentified targets in the vicinity of the Bremen Naval Base. The Leuna refinery was hit by more than 1,000 heavy bombers yesterday during a three-pronged raid on the Leipzig area which raked Merseburg, Halle and Dessau.

The weather today was "mixed," with some formations bombing visually and others releasing their explosives and incendiaries by means of instruments.

The British employed more than 1,000 heavyweight raiders in their pre-dawn attacks, boosting to at least 2,100 the total number of giant bombers over the Reich in the early hours of today, and to a minimum of 3,100 the number pounding Germany proper in the last 24 hours.

The RAF gave Stuttgart its fourth pounding in five days, in addition to spreading desolation through Hamburg and Frankfurt on the main. Liberator formations in daylight also attacked the German airbase at Juvincourt and Laon-Couvron, northeast of Paris.

German night fighters came up to challenge the British over the Reich as numerous aerial duels were fought, with at least 21 Nazi planes being shot down and many more probably being destroyed or damaged. The heavy night action cost the bomber command 62 craft.

The Constitution is the bulwark of every type of private ownership in the country, whether it is a house, a farm, an automobile, stocks and bonds, insurance, or a business enterprise.

It is small wonder that the vocal New Order radicals who have been active in our political life made up their minds long ago their first and chief enemy was the Constitution.
